Interests

Career Objective

When the pandemic hit, I realized I wanted more than to just tolerate my career. I started investing more time in my side hobby, coding, and realized this is where my passion lay. A journey of self-reflection and discovery has brought me to this point, and I'm eager to bring both my established and new skills to a company that will encourage my growth as a web developer. I'm looking for a Junior Developer role in a small to mid-size company. I bring to the table my broad range of skills in both science and the language arts, as well as my easy-going attitude.
